

CLUE MAY BE FOUND IN BANKRUPTCY TO TELL OF MURDERS

Financial Trouble of Weitzman Family May Reveal
Clue to Killing of Six.

While the New Jersey police have not yet fathomed the mysterious killing of six persons in the lonely Weitzman farmhouse on the Cranberry Road, five miles outside New Brunswick on last Wednesday night, papers in the Bankruptcy Court show that there had been numerous family quarrels. Samuel Weitzman, his wife, their daughter and son-in-law, David Kigner, and a farmhand were found murdered. Another farmhand was found dead with a bullet in his brain and a revolver in his hand. The theory of the police is that this farmhand murdered the others and then killed himself.

David Kigner, the slain son-in-law, was the senior partner in the firm of D. Kigner & Brother, manufacturing furriers at No. 12 East Third-second Street, this city, his brother Reuben being the other member of the firm. The firm failed in the early part of last August and was forced into bankruptcy.

Incidental to the hearing facts came out bearing on the domestic relations of the Weitzman family. It appeared that Kigner was married to the daughter of the family on July 31, a few days before the failure. His bride was given a dowry of $2,000 which she gave to him. Then he borrowed from his father-in-law, Weitzman, appeared in the schedule of liabilities as a creditor for $500.

Kigner told Special Commissioner William Tallman that he had lost his wife's dowry in the business. Kigner hypothesized some of the accounts of the firm to pay back some of his indebtedness to his brother-in-law and pay the father-in-law $100. Beatrice Kigner, the murdered bride, said on the stand:

"We are living with my father because my husband has not been able to do very much. He never told me that he had trouble in his business before bankruptcy. Soon after our marriage he gave me $250." In reply to a question, Mrs. Kigner said that her husband was a friend of hers to whom she had been obliged to go for money. The bankruptcy proceedings were still pending at the time of the murder.

FIGHT ON CLOTURE MAY DEADLOCK SENATE AT CONGRESS OPENING

Some See Possibility of Delay
In Delivery of the President's Message.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A tie-up of the Senate over cloture proposals, possibly disrupting plans for delivery of President Wilson's opening message next Tuesday, was threatened today. Senate Democrats to-day resumed their caucus, endeavoring to avoid a deadlock at the evening session Monday over the proposed "gag" rule. Re-election of Senator Clarke of Arkansas as Chairman pro tempore of the Senate was expected after opposition headed by Senators Stone and Reed.

Senator Owen opened the cloture fight to-day. As Chairman of the special committee he reported that the committee could not agree upon any of several plans considered. A free-for-all debate followed, with several plans presented. Owen urged the caucus to declare generally in favor of some cloture plan, without binding all Democrats to support cloture as a party measure. It was expected this plan would be adopted, leaving the gag rule fight to be launched individually in the Senate. If plans of Owen are adhered to the Senate may not be able to organize in time to notify the President and the House that it is ready for business and to join the House Tuesday in hearing the President's address. Democratic leaders planned, however, to call a truce in the cloture debate, if necessary, and attend the joint session informally to hear the Executive's opening message.

Because of the parliamentary importance of rulings on the cloture debate the caucus decision on Senator Clarke's re-election as Chairman pro tempore to-day was regarded as important. Clarke is reputedly opposed to cloture. Vice President Marshall may be unable to preside at the opening sessions. The rulings of the presiding officer will determine whether opposing Republicans and Democrats can successfully filibuster against any cloture proposal.

BEGGAR GOES TO BELLEVUE. Says His Uncle Is Emperor's Chief of Staff.

Jack Bankowitz, who knocked down Dudley Butler at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street the other day for refusing him alms, told Magistrate Frothingham a weird tale when he was arraigned in the Yorkville Court today. John is thirty years old, of medium size and husky. He says he is a mechanical engineer.

"My uncle," he said, "is Col. Heradesky, Chief of Staff of the Emperor of Austria. He will make me General of an army if I can get to Vienna. But Mr. Butler and Beverly Randolph Robinson, the lawyer, of No. 48 Wall Street, made a conspiracy with the Salvation Army to keep me here and take my blood. That is why I beat them both. Yes, and if I had you on Fifth Avenue I would beat you, too."

Magistrate Frothingham dismissed the assault charge and sent John to Bellevue for observation in the psychopathic ward.
